Chapter 1 by Tomio Fujino

"Uh, sir, could you repeat your list of demands?"

"...Um give us a second. We are, uh, collaborating." He turned off his radio, and my radio went silent.

This has got to be one of the strangest hostage negotiations I've experienced. Formally, I hear screaming, angry shouting, exuberant demands, and more cussing than soldiers in 'Nam. This was the exception; As far as I know, there are a group of 3 men who wielded assault rifles holding up a bank, and they are apparently arguing what they want. There have been shots fired, but immediately afterward I heard the attackers apologize.

After 15 minutes of radio silence, I heard the 'assailants' start to speak...
